This is particularly impressive because, after the new millennium, the Internet has given people the power to explore genres rarely played on the radio. The song and the related video satirize the American perception of foreigners in search of visa and immigrants from the nations of the third world. Both of these representations were very controversial at the time, but they made the song an instantaneous LGBTQ hymn. The song seemed to be destined for Oscuritate at the time of his release, until the 10 -year -old son of the famous actor Glenn Ford played the song for his father, who decided to use the song for the heads of his new film , Ã ¢ â € â € âœblackboard Jungle. He united his pop roots with Soul, Hip Hop, Metal, Rock and Roll, Gospel and Latin in her album.
